

December 2, 2016

Dear President Drew Gilpin Faust, Provost Alan M. Garber, Dean Michael D. Smith, Dean Xiao-Li Meng, Dean Rakesh Khurana, and Harvard University Faculty and Administration,

On November 15, 2016, just one week after the presidential election, President Faust wrote a letter that envisioned a Harvard “enriched, not embattled, by difference and diversity” and called us to exercise “our capacities and our values” to heal this nation. In response to her bold proposition, we, the Harvard Ethnic Studies Coalition, write appealing for critical ethnic studies at Harvard.

Over the past 44 years, Harvard students have submitted 11 proposals for ethnic studies. Today, neither a concentration nor a department for ethnic studies exists at Harvard, while our peer institutions have established research centers, departments, and programs in ethnic studies. We believe that this is a pivotal moment to fulfill intellectual needs that have gone unaddressed for too long. The president-elect’s political platform was built on xenophobic, sexist, and racist rhetoric and policy proposals, which, even within the first few days of the election, have inspired hate crimes against many marginalized groups in the United States. We believe this calls for urgent action on Harvard’s part to be ever more proactive in educating “the citizens and citizen-leaders for our society,” as the mission of Harvard College states, who are grounded in values of equity and justice.

Students and faculty across schools and departments at Harvard have demonstrated their interest in and dedication to ethnic studies over the years. During the past year alone, we have organized teach-ins, town halls, and workshops on ethnic studies. Harvard students continue to pursue ethnic studies, even given the limited intellectual and material support from the University. We, then, find it incomprehensible that our institution continues to overlook our appeals and consequently fail to foster our intellectual growth.

Our proposal for structural change includes, but is not limited to, the following. Many of our concerns are also reflected in the recent petition to protect undocumented students at Harvard.

- Establish a Department of Ethnic Studies that offers: undergraduate concentrations and secondary fields in 1) Native American and Indigenous Studies, 2) Latinx Studies, 3) Asian American Studies, 4) Arab and Muslim American Studies, and 5) Comparative Race and Ethnic Studies; and Ph.D. degrees and graduate-level secondary fields in Ethnic Studies.
- Establish a center that would be a national and international hub for research in critical ethnic studies in comparative, national, transnational, and global frameworks, providing much-needed intellectual space for students, scholars, and faculty on campus.
- Recruit and retain Ethnic Studies faculty and faculty of color by dedicating tenured, tenure-track, and visiting professorships for Ethnic Studies and its allied disciplines such as Studies of Women, Gender, and Sexuality, and African and African American Studies.

We believe that now is the time to act—for the University to be at the forefront of teaching, learning, and research in an academic field that seeks to examine some of the most fundamental and critical questions of our time. Indeed, the University must renew its dedication to developing leaders who can make a difference at home and globally.

Respectfully submitted,
Harvard Ethnic Studies Coalition, and the following signatories
