The Pandemic’s Missing Data | New York Times

Black American communities that have long experienced the consequences of the structural inequities in America’s health care system are at a much higher risk of devastation from a pandemic.
The National Council of Asian Pacific Islander Physicians (NCAPIP) has released a set of recommendations for the Centers for Disease Control and U.S. state and local health departments on collecting comprehensive patient demographic data during and after the COVID-19 pandemic, part of a report that highlights the racial and ethnic disparities in cases, hospitalizations, and deaths related to COVID-19.

“"As Dr. [Deborah] Birx said correctly, it’s not that they are getting infected more often, it’s that when they do get infected, their underlying medical conditions — the diabetes, hypertension, the obesity, the asthma — those are the kind of things that wind them up in the ICU and ultimately give him a higher death rate.”
Fauci said, “When all this is over and, as we said, it will end, we will get over coronavirus, but there will still be health disparities which we really do need to address in the African American community.”

Health, Inequity, and COVID-19, Virtual Radcliffe, Tuesday, Apr 28, 2020
4:00 pm

International experience in recent months has powerfully illustrated that the COVID-19 virus has particularly harmful and disproportionate effects on already vulnerable populations. Mary Bassett and Khalil Gibran Muhammad will discuss inequity and public health in the time of COVID-19, exploring how the virus encounters existing inequalities, replicates these inequalities, and, in many cases, amplifies them.
